WHAT CHILDCARE IS COSTING FAMILIES

UNSUSTAINABLE LIVING

Clocking in just to break even

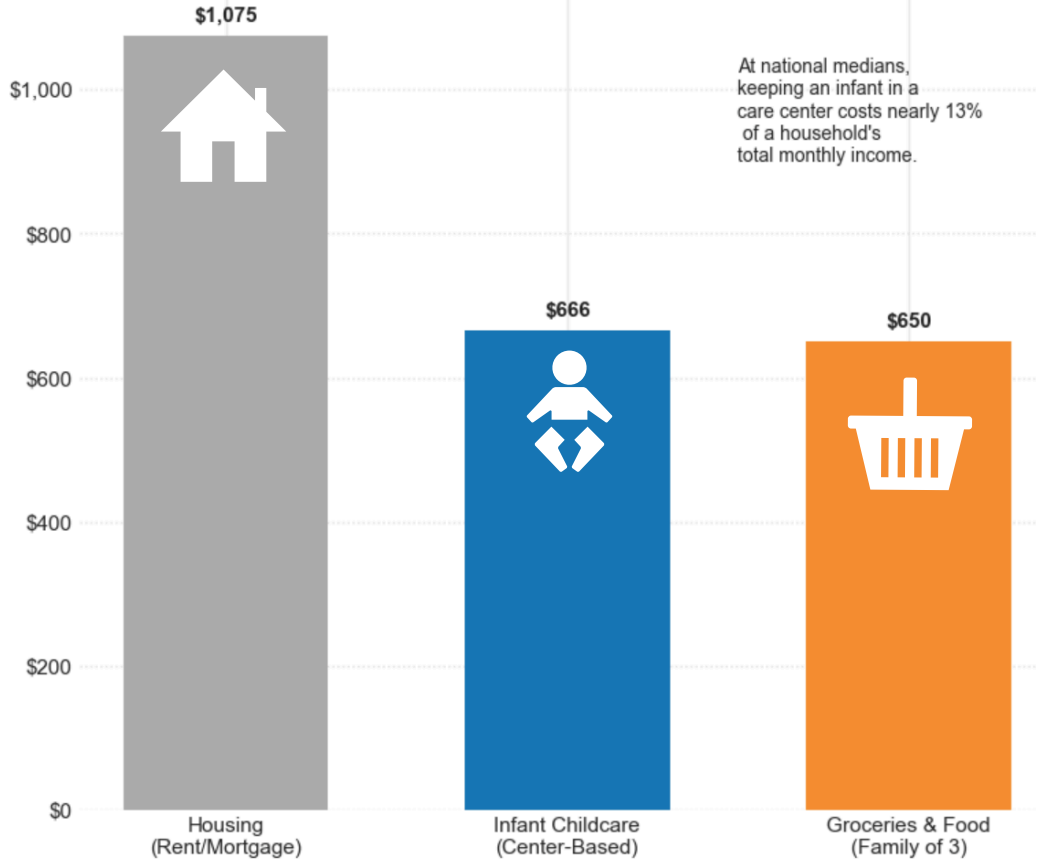

How an 8-hour workday breaks down for a childcare teacher with an infant

Hours Worked to Pay for Daycare | Hours Left for Housing, Food, & Essentials

How are families affording it all?

Comparison of basic average monthly expenses

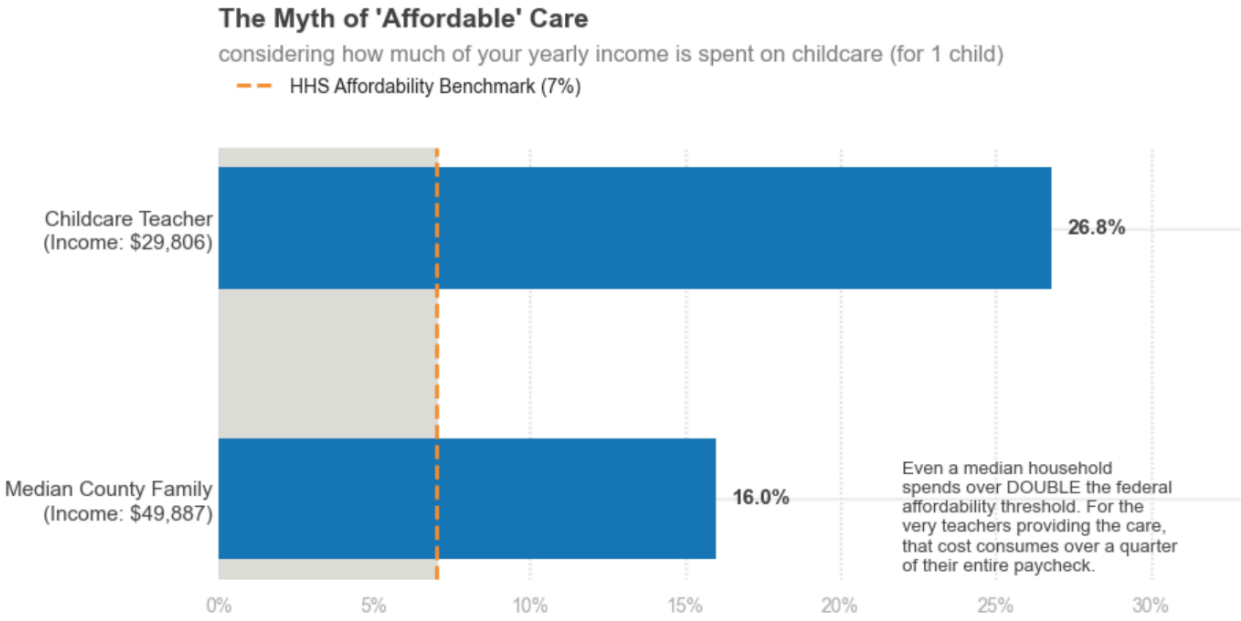

For individuals making $14.33/hour or $29,806/year, (the median baseline teacher salary) they have to work 2.14 hours just to break even on childcare

For a family of 3, having an infant in a childcare center is costing them nearly 13% of their household's total monthly income

For some families, childcare costs more a month than groceries!

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES (HHS) HAS HISTORICALLY SET AN AFFORDABILITY BENCHMARK STATING THAT CHILDCARE SHOULD CONSUME NO MORE THAN 7% OF A FAMILY'S ANNUAL INCOME TO BE ECONOMICALLY SUSTAINABLE

For a family with a median income of $49,887, having a single child in childcare expends 16% of the family's income.

The cost of child care now exceeds the price of college tuition in 38 states and the District of Columbia
