Unsustainable Living

What Childcare is Costing Families

Callista Kramer

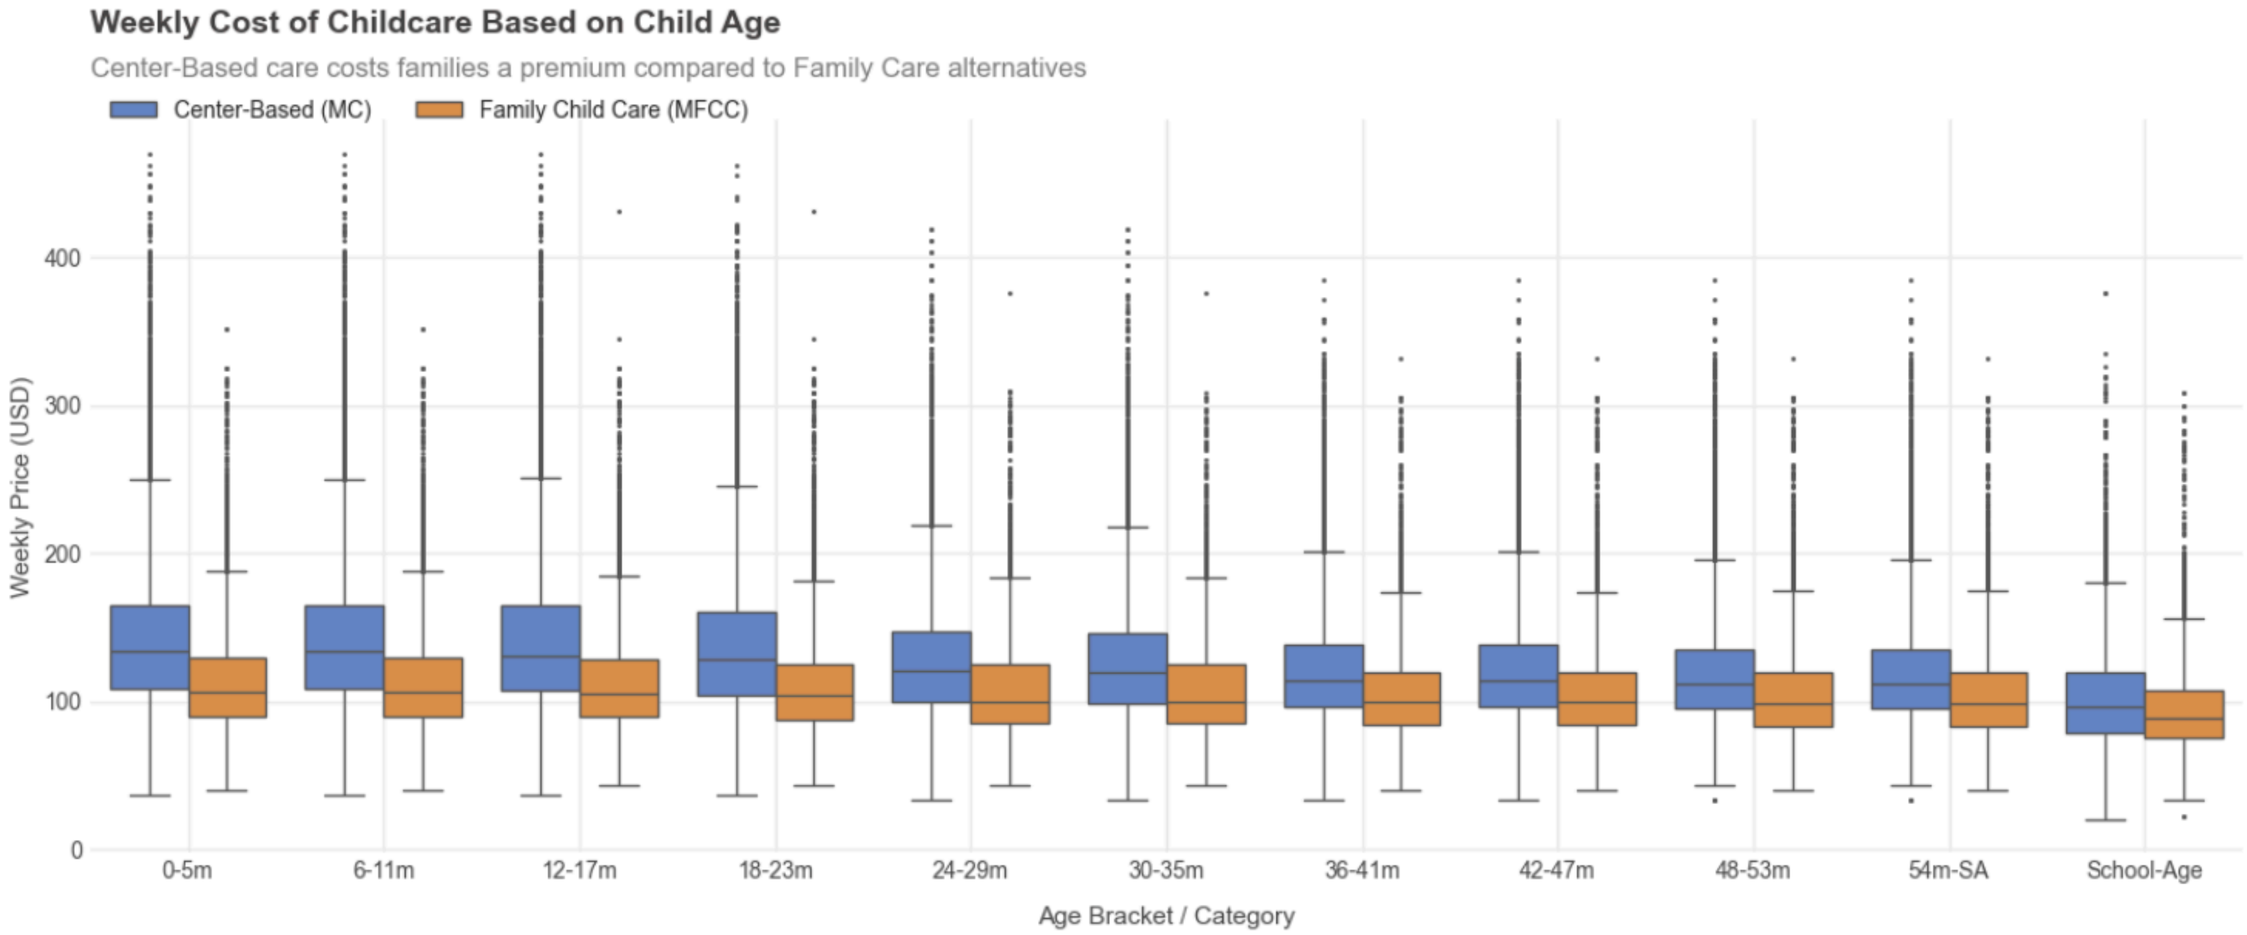

National Database of Childcare Prices (NDCP)

Study on Affordability of Childcare for American Families

- Data covers from 2008 to 2018
  - In 2008, only 45.3% of surveyed counties reported a complete profile across all childcare age brackets
  - 2016 peaked at 84.1%
  - 2017 and 2018 stabilized in the mid 70th percentile
- Contains median prices for center-based childcare facilities and family childcare (home based care run by an individual)

Childcare is Becoming More Unaffordable

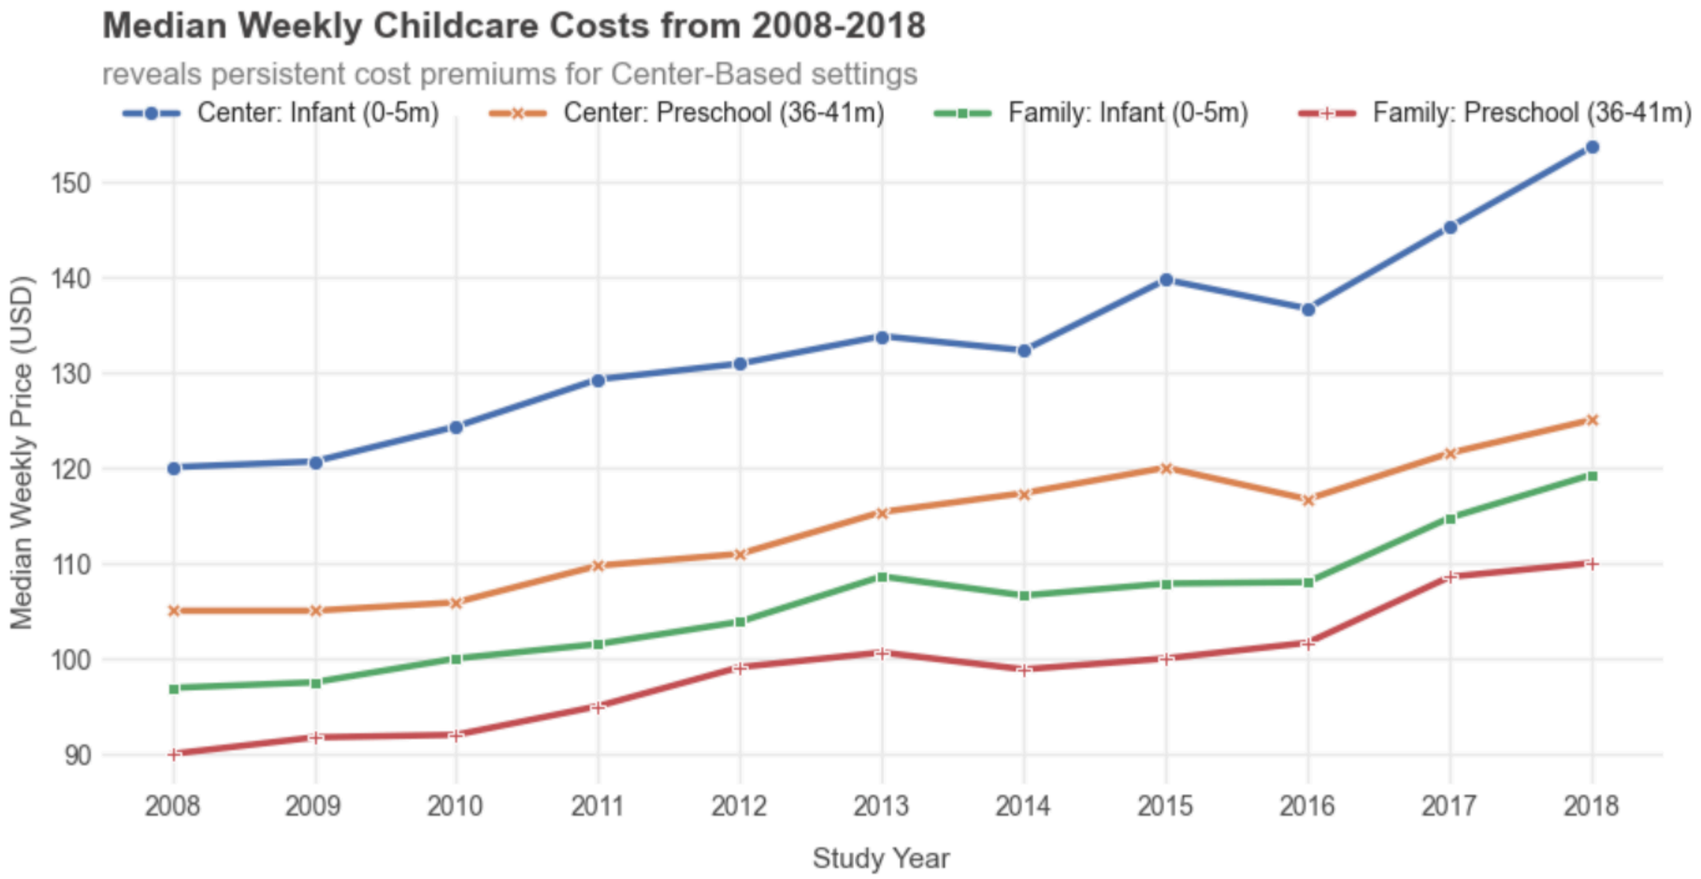

As some families pay more than $400/week for care

Center based care's median ranges are higher across the board over family child care

Dramatically Increasing Prices Have To Stop

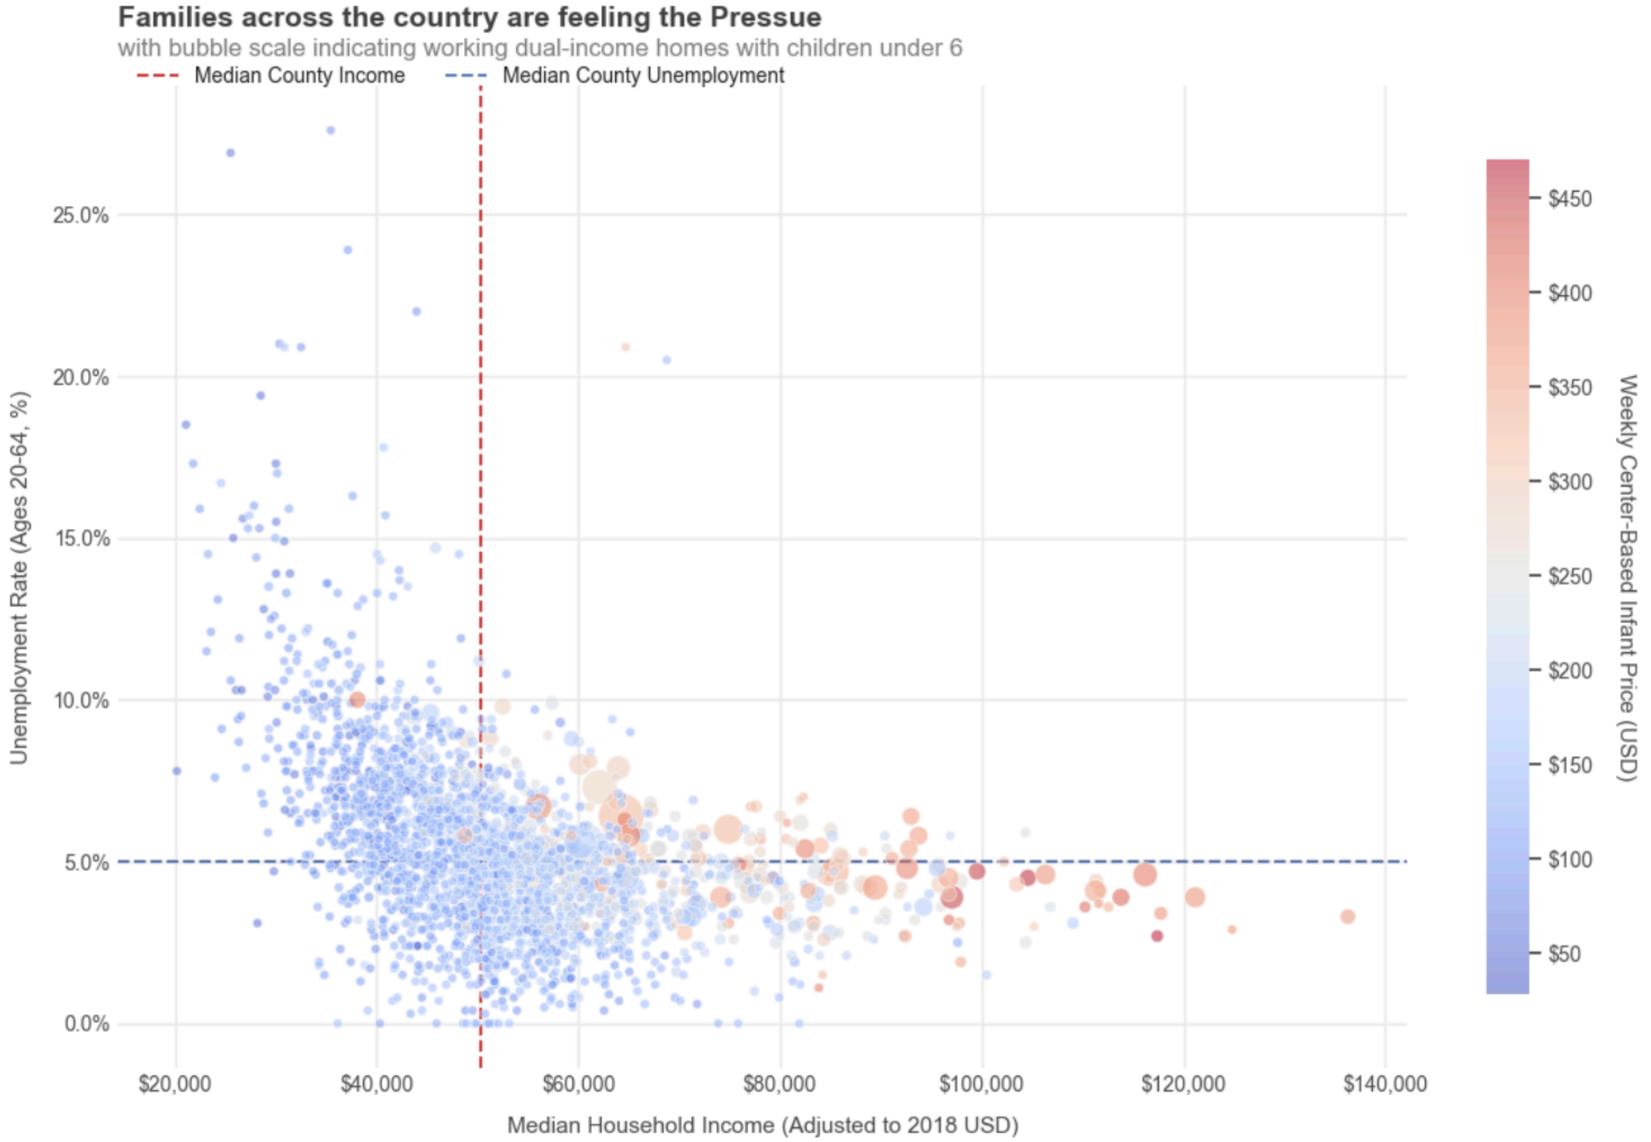

Center care prices are making unsustainable jumps

- Focusing on infants and preschoolers, known to be the most expensive for childcare
- Center care has always tracked higher than family based care

Families Must See Relief

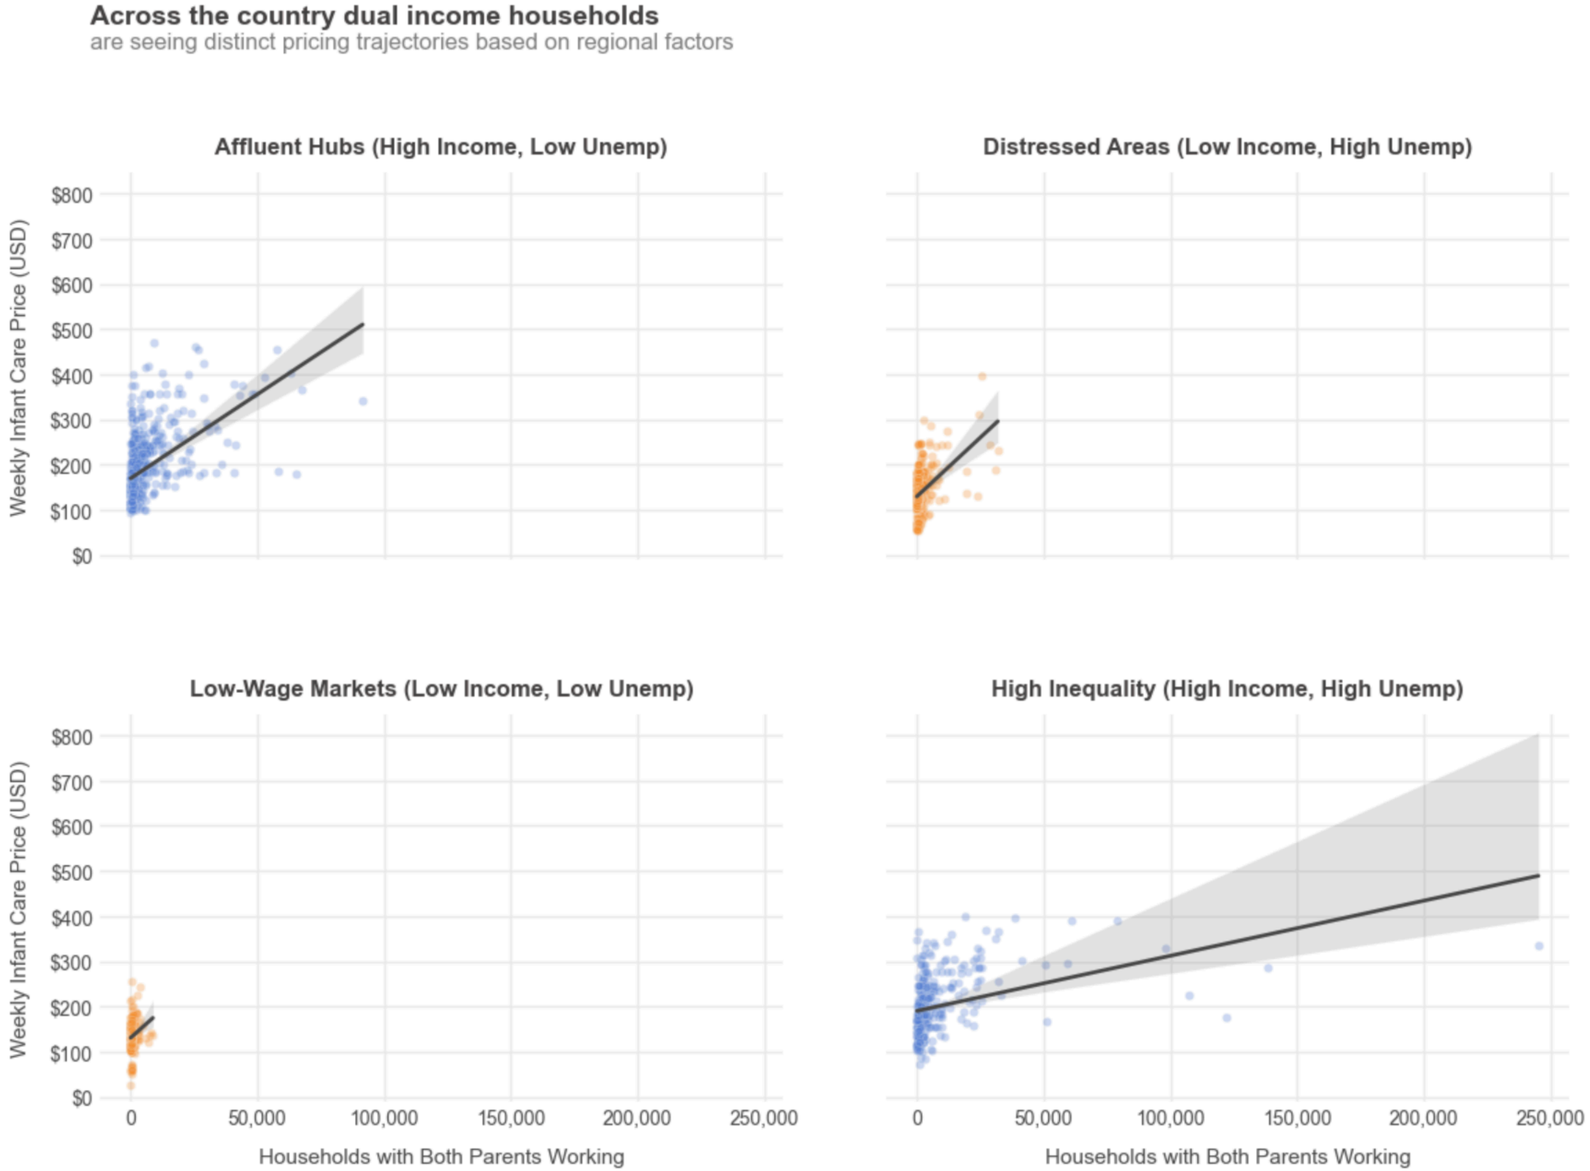

From unaffordable childcare

- The Department of Health and Human Services sets economically sustainable childcare costs at no more than 7% of a family's annual income

Prevent Childcare Centers from Charging More

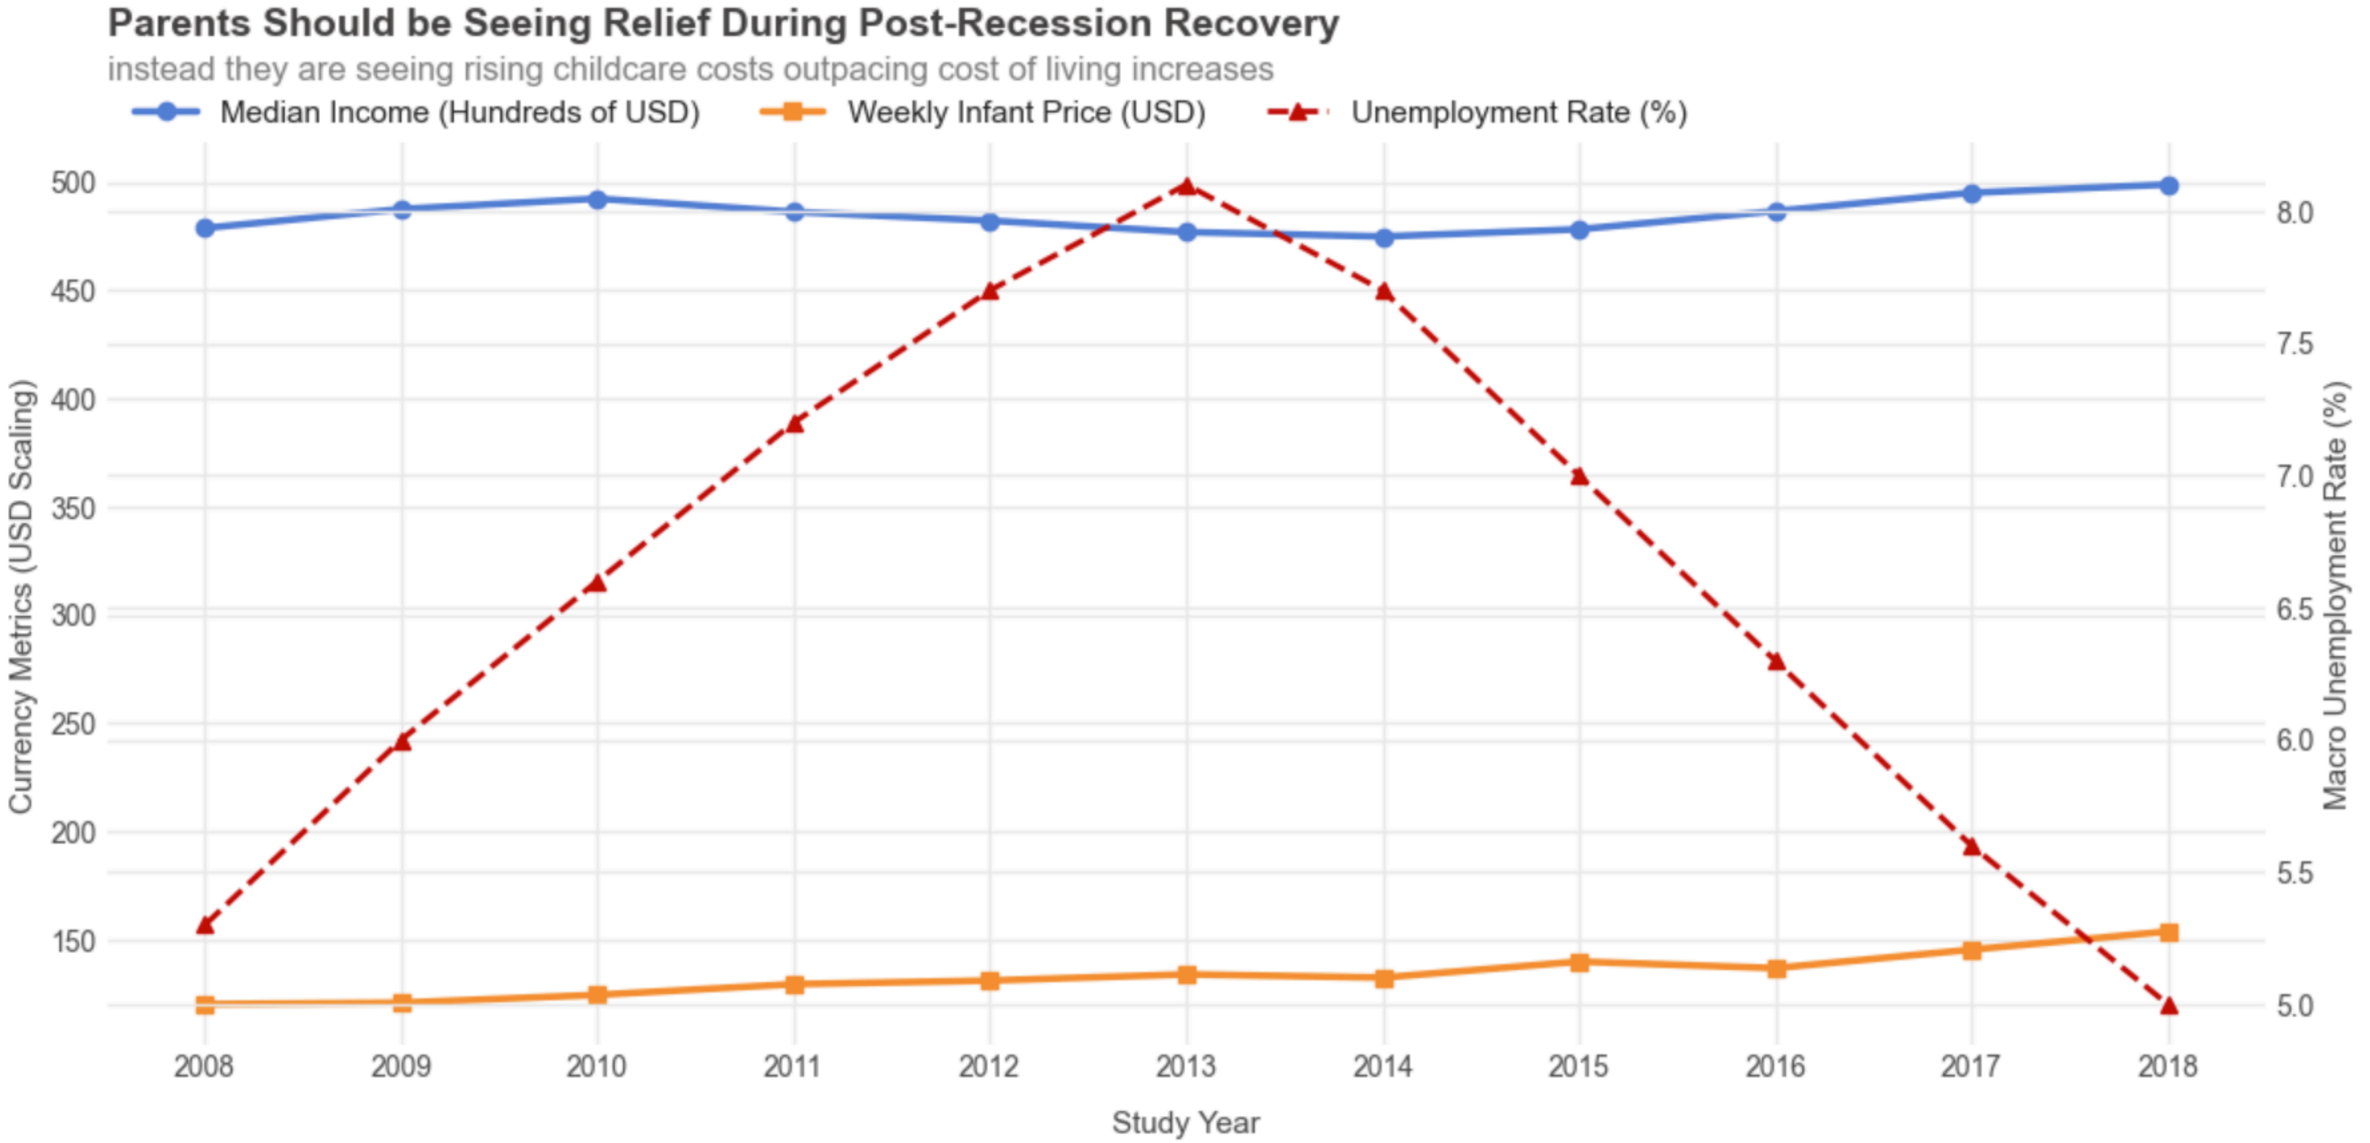

In areas where both parents must work

- Regardless of local economy, having a large amount of parents that need to work, drives childcare prices up
- More affluent areas have a higher median weekly price for childcare ➔ providers know they can charge more

Childcare Prices Must be Stabilized

As they continue to rise at a higher rate than family income

Every State is Above the 7% Affordable Childcare Percent

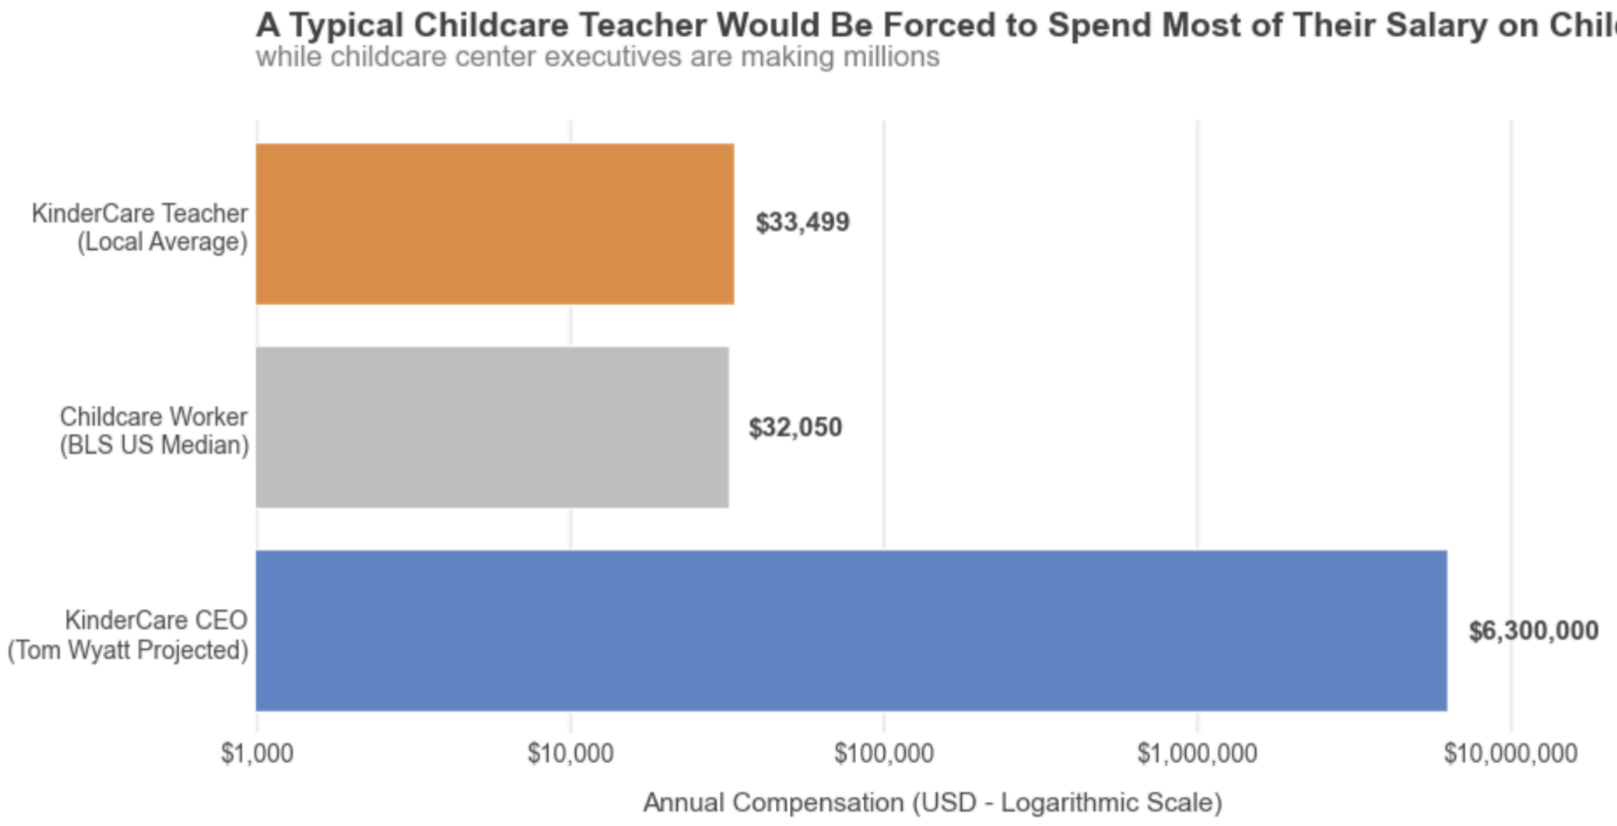

Families Cannot Afford to Work; Families Cannot Afford to NOT Work

- Highest at nearly $350/week = Hawaii
- Lowest around $75/week = Mississippi
- 26/41 states pay $150+/week for childcare
- 31 out of 41 states families spend 15% or more on childcare per year
    - This is more than double the Health and Human Services affordable childcare percent

Stop Corporate Childcare Greed

Who are underpaying workers and overpaying executives

- KinderCare pulls in 2.7 Billion dollars annually
- KinderCare CEO Tom Wyatt's projected 2026 base compensation is $6.3 M
- KinderCare workers make $32,050 (BLS US median) or Papillion, NE average of $33,499

In 2024, Tom Wyatt made $58,971,059 or 1,191 times the median U.S. worker's pay

Childcare Should Not be Subject to Corporate Greed

Families require childcare so they can work

Government must set regulations on childcare

Childcare isn't a right, it is a necessity for families
